Book Description

Meet best friends, Catherine, Rachel and Sarah. They're fun, smart and successful, and haven't had a date worth booking a wax appointment for in ages.

Catherine runs London's most successful matchmaking business with her silent partner ex-husband, Richard, who's just announced that he's marrying his twenty-three year old girlfriend. Catherine has bras that are older than Magda, and now she's barging in on their business with her meddlesome demands and wedding plans.

Architect Rachel's got problems of her own. At work she's competing against her ex-boyfriend, James, to win their biggest project and the promotion that comes with it. So when she joins Catherine's website, RecycLove.com, where everyone brings an ex to recycle for the chance of an upgrade, she knows just who she's going to trade in.

Homebody baker, Sarah, is in a rut thanks to family demands over the last few years. Reluctantly she joins RecycLove.com with Rachel, where she's told that some minor adjustments will improve her chances. But as minor adjustments turn into a complete overhaul and dates start falling at her newly-pedicured feet, will her popularity be worth the sacrifices she's making?

A warm, funny story of friendship and self-discovery with a message: Match us if you can, guys, but if not then politely step aside and we'll get on with being fabulous.

Praise for Match Me If You Can

"Fresh, funny and brilliant - we gobbled it up in just two sittings." Heat Magazine

"A well-written comedy romp that will have you cheering on the likeable heroines." Sunday Mirror

"Fraught and fun, this is a wonderful rollercoaster of a read." Tracy Bloom

"Feisty bursts of humor light the pages." LoveReading

"It's refreshing that none of its three heroines puts the wants and needs of a man before their own. Yes, it's nice to have a man, but having real friendships, a strong career, and self-confidence are the vertebrae in the spine of life." Chick Lit Central
